Good Afternoon,

I'm pleased to hear of proposed rule change to 1.7.8 NMAC .

I understand that urine has been (& will always be) the the go to method of drug testing. But with HHS & DOT approving oral fluid as an alternative method is going to be so much better. It will help out so many individuals that get Shy Badder , and can't go on demand. So in the case a Shy Bladder situation arises with a urine test, the collector should be able to switch to an Oral Fluid test. Instead of waiting for 3 hrs urging the individual to consume 40 ozs of water and try to force them to go. The oral fluid sample will save time away from work production & money.

Thank You for your time
